State to upgrade Kiln crossroads

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

Southern Highway Commissioner Ronnie Shows met with members of the North Hancock County Business and Professional Association Thursday night.

Shows discussed the association's request for installation of new traffic signals at the Highway 603/Kiln DeLisle/Old Picayune Road.

Barbara Healy, association member and meeting chairman, said, Shows reported present traffic conditions at the intersection do not meet all the criteria set by the Highway Department to warrant a stop light.

He said his department will continue to monitor the situation.

Three things will be implemented within a year at the intersection, Shows told association members.

—1. Turning bays are to be installed.

—2. Better markings are will be made at the approach of Highway 603 on the Kiln/

Aldermen name second Port/Harbor candidate

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

The Waveland Board of Aldermen approved resident Louis Brown as replacement nominee for Hancock County Port and Harbor candidate Marsha Conery Wednesday.

Mayor Stella Frilot stated Conery withdrew her name from consideration, citing as reasons delay of time by the governor in making the appointments, along with a reversal in interest by Conery Commission appointments are recommended by the cities. Final appointment is given by Governor Kirk Fordice.

Conery's nomination was made in January and forwarded to the Governor's office in February.

Frilot recommended the board approve the nomination of resident Louis Brown, Waveland alternate municipal election commissioner, to the Port and Harbor position.

Brown worked for 17 years with the Port of Houston (Texas) Authority as an operating department head. He said as manager of the marine department, his experiences included promotion and

Mitchell: Beach project continues on schedule

BY TRACI BONNEY

The county's beach renourishment project is moving on schedule, according to Bill Mitchell.

Mitchell, consulting engineer to the project's advisory committee, gave the board of supervisors a brief update on the project's status during a Thursday workshop. He said all the permits needed are in place; 1-to-200-scale aerial photos of Beach Blvd. are in hand; and Mitchell is working with county road superintendent Sam Cuevas on the drainage surveys along the beach.

"We should have the project plans complete by July, the bids in mid-August, and should be able to begin construction in late September or early October," he told the supervisors.

Earlier in the meeting, while speaking with the press, he remarked, "About February or March, we hope to have a beach party."

He also informed the board that a company in Greenwood has about four million cubic yards of unneeded sand to get rid of, and is interested in selling it to the county. Mitchell said he told the company officials if they can load it, barge it down to Bay St. Louis and unload the barge somewhere in the vicinity of the project site for $3 to $3.50 a cubic yard, it may be worth the county's consideration.

The renourishment project, currently estimated to cost about $1.8 million, is targeting the Washington Street pier area, the Waveland/Coleman Avenue pier vicinity, and the beach at Buccaneer Park as its main sites.

A proposal made by businessman Bill Mouton to the supervisors recently is awaiting Corps of Engineers approval, Mitchell said.

Mouton had offered to install several of his Beachcones at no cost to the county so the supervisors could judge for themselves the effectiveness of the product.

Beachcones are truncated concrete structures designed to reverse beach erosion by recapturing sand suspended in the water. As the wave action brings the water over the cones, the sand drops out of the water into or around the base of the

Waveland Civic Center repairable

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Building official/inspector Keith Mitchell reported to the Board of Aldermen Wednesday the vacant city civic center is structurally repairable.

Mitchell said the present wiring and plumbing is substandard, recommending the city remove and replace all wiring, panels, sub-panels and fixtures in the building.

"Concerning plumbing," he continued, "the pipes are dilapidated. There are numerous leaks and pipes getting ready to burst."

"We need to go in, remove what is there, and put in modern plumbing. This will give us an opportunity to consolidate the two separate restroom facilities and make them handicapped accessible."

Mitchell reported air conditioning and heating to be basically nonexistent in the building. "We need a new system that will heat and cool the whole area, and at same time, allow us to zone off only those areas in use."

"Structurally," he stated, "the building is in repairable condition. There appears to be no major structural failures, though there is evidence of fractures and breaks on the outside."

Mitchell added a termite inspection was yet to be completed, and there were situations warranting further investigation.

Mayor Stella Frilot commented the next step would be to gather contract quotes.

The board approved a change order to the FmHA water and sewer improvements project contract with GM&R Construction Co. with Ward 4 alderman Stan Weidman dissenting.

Weidman asked that information on project change orders be supplied to the aldermen

State St. abandonment raises many questions

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Bay St. Louis City Council's recent abandonment of part of State Street to Jerry and Melva Fisher and the Dock of the Bay Group Inc. has generated several questions among city residents.

Mayor Edward Favre made a recommendation Tuesday to abandon the 18-foot-wide by 75-foot-long unused strip of State Street to Fisher. Fisher told the Council he planned to relocate the Dock of the Bay's kitchen and make other additions to accommodate a seafood boiling room and serving porch on the north side of the building.

The Council approved the abandonment 4-1, with Charles Scianna dissenting. Scianna said he opposed the move because of the city's need to maintain a drainage pipe on the property.

Fisher said the city will have access to the pipe, and he will grant the city a construction and maintenance easement. He also offered to take care of some of the maintenance himself.

Phone calls to the Sea Coast Echo office since the news was published Thursday have included questions as to the lack of Planning and Zoning Commission involvement; why the city didn't sell Fisher the property; and what the city would do if other property owners petition to have the beach side of Carroll Avenue or another beachfront street abandoned.

According to both Favre and Les Fillingame, chairman of the Planning and Zoning Commission, the commission is not required to act on street abandonments. Favre added that in street abandonments, only the adjoining property owners must be notified of the request; in this case, the adjoining property owners made the request.

Favre also said that any time the city abandons a street, the property automatically goes back to the adjoining property

Local Food Pantry celebrates six years

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

The Hancock County Food Pantry celebrated six years on May 19, serving some 17,928 needy people.

The Food Pantry is an agency of the United Way of Hancock County and is staffed by volunteers from the community's churches. It is located in the back section of the Hancock County Courthouse, next to the Civil Defense office.

Secretary and spokesman Evelyn Johnson said, "The first few days after the opening were hectic and filled with anxiety, but things quickly calmed down when a system for handling the food was established."

"The first crisis the Food Pantry survived was the explosion of the 'Challenger.' Through the help and love given to the newly 'jobless workers,' the Pantry's volunteers formed the philosophy of 'truly caring and tender treatment,' that is bestowed on all who come for help," Johnson added.

The Food Pantry is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon.

During its six years of operation, thousands of volunteer hours have been necessary for the organization to operate.

Food items are collected at churches, during special drives by community groups and organizations, and through donations from businesses and industries.

The organization's presidents have been Teen DeRocha, Ina Piazza and Aileen Sauzer. They deserve a great deal of credit, as do the other officers and members of the board of directors, Johnson said.

Current officers are Aileen Sauzer, president; Wilma McMahon, vice-president/secretary; Evelyn Johnson, secretary; Teen DeRocha, Bobby Boudin, Merlin Cripple, Ina Piazza, Father Nick Johnson and Father William Kelly, directors.

Johnson emphasized, a lot of credit also goes to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, Civil Defense and County Fire Marshall's offices, as they provide day-by-day assistance and support.

Asked what makes the organization work, Johnson stated, "It is the people of Hancock County, churches, businesses, Retired Senior Volunteers (RSVP), The Sea Coast Echo and all of the many groups and organizations who have helped keep the Pantry open by their constant donations of food, time and money."

"This is a wonderful example of what the people of a county can accomplish when they work together. As the Food Pantry celebrates a happy sixth birthday, the organization can say congratulations to Hancock County," Johnson commented.

Memorial Day closings

In honor of Memorial Day all offices of Hancock County and the cities of Waveland and Bay St. Louis will be closed Monday.

There will be no garbage collections in either city on Monday. Service for Monday customers will resume on the next scheduled day of those routes.

All local banks will be closed on Monday.

Torguson said Summit

Torguson also told the T&GA members he will triple the association's membership by insisting that all employees of his operation join the association and by paying the employees' dues.

The association has 250 members at present. Torguson has projected that Bay Cove Casino, scheduled to open Labor Day weekend, will employ 500 people.

Waste disposal

Engineer discusses options with city/county officials

BY TRACI BONNEY
Bay St. Louis, Waveland and county officials met with engineer Lloyd Compton last week to discuss waste disposal. Compton was contracted by the three governing bodies to develop options and recommendations on how to meet new federal mandates concerning disposal and minimization of residential, municipal and industrial waste.

The federal government's new regulations call for the municipalities and counties to develop and present for approval by July 9 a plan for the disposal of waste over the next 20 years and the reduction of waste by 25 percent by 1996. Compton and his son David presented four disposal options and recommendations. The two men, along with Waste Management representative Bill Johnson, discussed the possibilities and problems with the board of supervisors, Waveland representative Keith Mitchell, Bay St. Louis councilman Charles Scianna and Bay purchasing clerk Gordon Boh.

WASTE DISPOSAL

The options for disposal are:
1. Open a landfill at a site in Standard, contract its operation, and receive only residential waste;
2. Open the Standard landfill site, contract operations, and receive all non-hazardous county waste;
3. Open the Standard site, operate it with county personnel, and receive only residential waste;
4. Deliver to any landfill meeting state and federal standards under a long-term (20-year) agreement.

In any option involving the Standard site, Compton said, the advantages include the existence of a permit for the site; no land cost; guaranteed long-term disposal site; and better control over haul and disposal contract cost due to public ownership of the landfill.

The disadvantages include possible future property purchase because the current site is on 16th section land; problems with access to major highways; and higher costs, either to the county itself, or to industry and business under Option #2.

Each of the first three options also has other advantages and disadvantages unique to the option's requirements.

Option #4, delivering to any landfill meeting state and federal standards, is the least expensive option, allows access by the disposer to major highways, reduces capital cost, and carries the potential for a long-term disposal site.

Its disadvantages include less control of disposal and haul and disposal contract cost, and the necessity for a 20-year agreement.

Compton showed those present how much each option would cost for only Hancock County, and for the county if Pearl River and/or Stone counties were to join.

The most expensive option is the first. If Hancock County were to open the Standard site under contract operations and accept only the residential waste within the county, the monthly cost for each household would be $4.92, according to Compton's projections.

Even if both Pearl River and Stone County join in implementing this option, the cost per household would be about $2.89 a month. This compares to an across-the-board cost of $1.38 per month per household for Option #4, whether or not the other two counties join.

Compton's recommendations to the officials were:

1. Bid landfill disposal with two alternatives — a 20-year disposal contract at an existing permitted landfill with annual Consumer Price Index increase to cover inflation rates, or construction and operation of the Standard site for five years with an option to renew.

2. Attempt to form a cooperative agreement with Pearl River and Stone counties to be included in the bid outlined in the first recommendation.

3. Bid county-wide collection and haul contracts, including mailbox (house-to-house curbside) collection in the county (either with or without the other two counties).

4. Initiate a monthly user fee per household to pay for the solid waste plan, with consideration given to a penalty for non-payment.

Mitchell questioned whether Waveland would have to give up its current waste collection method if the city joined the county plan. Compton assured him the government's main concern is how the waste is disposed, not collected, and Waveland can continue its present collection program even if it joins the county plan.

Compton said in order to meet the July 9 deadline and satisfy state and federal regulations concerning public hearings on the matter, the county needs to have a plan formulated by June 1.

Compton: Outlook dim for value of recyclables

BY TRACI BONNEY

During a meeting last week with county supervisors and city officials, engineer David Compton outlined the options, recommendations and problems the county will face as it addresses a mandated waste minimization goal.

One of the biggest problems the county, and many other entities or companies dealing in waste disposal, will confront is what to do with recyclable materials, Compton said. He told the officials that a sharp decline occurred last summer in prices per ton paid for recyclables, and that the situation does not seem to be improving.

He began by addressing waste minimization in general. Compton said education, waste reduction, recycling and composting are among the methods that can be used to reach a federally imposed goal of 25 percent reduction by 1996 in solid waste delivered to sanitary landfills.

Education includes school programs and teaching commercial, industrial and government workers how to reduce waste. Reduction techniques include avoiding over-packaged products, purchasing reusable items and reusing them, donating unneeded items, and yard waste separation.

Compton said yard waste can be reused by chipping or composting. He told the officials that putting grass, leaves, branches and other yardwork into a trashfill instead of a landfill will not count toward the 25 percent reduction goal.

He said recycling can be accomplished through drop-off centers, volunteer programs, curbside collection (voluntary or mandatory), or separation after collection of household garbage which, as Compton pointed out, is "a dirty job."

Composting can be done by individuals or on a municipal level, or in a combination of the two methods.

Compton's recommendations for waste minimization include:

1. Initiate waste reduction by education using a recycling coordinator.
2. Bid curbside collection for Bay St. Louis, Diamondhead and Waveland with two alternatives — material procession and collection as separate contracts, or as a single contract, with the guarantees provided in the bidding documents that recyclables will be processed either with or without rebates for resale of materials.

3. Separate yard waste collection for Bay St. Louis, Diamondhead and Waveland. Yard waste will not be allowed to be mixed with municipal waste in the entire county (by ordinance).

Instead, the yard waste can be collected by either the public or private sector and delivered to the Standard landfill, to be mixed with poor quality soils for reuse as topsoil.

4. Attempt to form a cooperative agreement with Pearl River and Stone counties.

Compton said that while recycling is both necessary and desirable in waste minimization, the main problem currently facing recyclers is the lack of demand for their supplies.

He explained that around July of last year, prices for many recyclables plummeted. Recycling companies that had collected newspapers were actually losing money on them in some cases, according to Compton's graphs.

Glass prices also fell sharply, especially for green glass. "In 1991 we experienced a drop in the value of recyclables," Compton said. "Nineteen ninety-two isn't looking much better, and 1993-95 may look worse."

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

An auction is one of the many ways in which fund-raisers are conducted in Hancock County.

Next Saturday the Waveland Civic Association will conduct its 3rd annual auction as a benefit for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The auction will be at the National Guard Armory, Longfellow Drive, Bay St. Louis, beginning at 6 p.m. Shorty Necaise Jr. is the chairman for the auction, and he tells me he has been collecting some really good items to be bid on.

Among the items for bid are, O'Brien water skis, a $1,200 hair replacement, (several of us could use that item), baseball cards, roofing shingles, etc.

By the way, if you have something you would like to donate for the auction, give Necaise a call at 467-7717, as all types of merchandise will be accepted.

As most of you know, Jerry Lewis is a very big supporter of Muscular Dystrophy and the Waveland Civic Association also helps with the annual television campaign over the Labor Day weekend.

So do not forget the auction next Saturday night.

Tomorrow marks Memorial Day, a day all Americans should remember those who gave their lives for our country.

Special Memorial Day services will be held in both Bay St. Louis and Waveland by the respective American Legion Posts.

In Bay St. Louis, members of the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139 and auxiliary members will meet at 10 a.m. at the grave site of Clement R. Bontemps to place a wreath.

Post Chaplain Earl Salaun will give special address.

The grave site is located at St. Mary's Cemetery, Necaise Avenue, next to St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church.

Following this, Legionnaires will meet at the post's monument for a post everlasting ceremony for post members who died during the past year.

The Bourgeois-Stieffel-Ray American Legion Post 77 in Waveland will begin their special ceremonies at 11 a.m. at the post home on Coleman Avenue.

Special guest speaker will be Gen. Paul Harvey, U.S.A.F. retired.

The public is invited to attend these special Memorial Day services.

Refreshments will be served at both American Legion Posts. I hope to see you at the Memorial Day services.

From the Mississippi

Merry Christmas, Mississippi

Within recent days the Congress has been lighting up a "Christmas tree" for America.

Legislation which provides something for almost everybody is labeled as a "Christmas tree" as it works its way through the houses of the Congress.

This year's congressional "Christmas tree" began as an aid bill to Los Angeles and Chicago but soon included everybody's favorite project from Pensacola to Philadelphia.

Mississippi has its own "Christmas tree."

In the closing days of the 1992 legislative session, according to Lt. Governor Eddie Briggs, legislators lit up another wise modest bond bill.

The bill originally called for about $30 million in bonds to meet limited, identifiable needs. But, said the Lieutenant Governor, pro-tax advocates saw the bill as an opportunity to pick up sales tax votes by adding legislators' pet projects to the bond proposal.

By the time the decorating was done, the $30 million bond bill had reached $90 million, in addition to the passage of the $166 million tax increase.

Here are some of the "decorations" on Mississippi's "Christmas tree."

—Another state office building for the Department of Agriculture and Commerce at the state fairgrounds: $2.5 million.

—Stadium lights at Alcorn State University: $500,000.

—Renovation of the swimming pool at Jackson State University: $806,000.

—And, at least one project for each of the 15 community and junior colleges, and one or more projects for each of the 8 state universities.

Here we are, just 40 days away from the fourth of July, and we have already decorated the "Christmas tree."

Merry Christmas, Mississippi.

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI HOUSE

J.P. Compretta

Compretta reappointed to NCSL Law and Justice Committee

Representative J. P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis has been reappointed to represent the Mississippi House of Representatives on the Law and Justice Committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL).

The committee is one of 11 standing committees of NCSL's State-Federal Assembly, the National Conference's policy-making body. The State-Federal Assembly is responsible for the NCSL's lobbying efforts before Congress, the White House and Federal agencies.

Compretta is chairman of the House Local and Private Legislation Committee and former chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Performance Evaluation and Expenditure Review (PEER). Other committee assignments in the House include Conservation and Water Resources; Judiciary "A"; and Ways and Means.

"Decisions made in Washington continue to have a major impact on state legislatures," Compretta said. "Through the NCSL's State-Federal Assembly, members of state legislatures are able to represent the interests of their citizens before Congress and the national Administration."

"I am pleased to have been selected to again serve on the Law and Justice Committee and look forward to continue working on critical state-federal issues with legislators from throughout the country," he added.

The State-Federal Assembly convenes three times a year to meet with federal officials and develop recommendations on a wide range of national issues affecting state-federal relations. Among the issues high on the law and justice Committee's agenda are drug control strategies, the federal crime bill, and product liability for general aviation.

NCSL represents the legislators and staffs of the nation's 50 states, commonwealths and territories. Its basic objectives are to improve the quality and effectiveness of state legislatures; promote interstate communication and cooperation; and assure state legislatures a strong, cohesive voice in the federal system.

Compretta also has held a number of other key legislative positions on the national level in recent years, including serving on the Science, Technology and Resource Planning Committee of the NCSL, and the national committee on Suggested State Legislation of the Council of State Governments.

Digging new wells

There are quite a number of federal projects and programs that the taxpayer would be better off without. But, one program that actually does work and gives back something to the small communities that foot the bills for the federal government are the water and sewer improvement projects through the United States Farmers Home Administration (FmHA).

We have announced a number of water and sewer grants and loans for Mississippi. All have been awarded during the first four months of 1992 by FmHA, and they carry a grand total of $15,188,900—$8,171,600 in loans and $7,017,300 in grants.

The money is being used in 26 counties by 22 water associations, five water districts, five cities, one water system and one water corporation, all for the improvement of water and sewer service.

The improvements include new water systems, sewer upgrades, water sheds, wells, treatment facilities, water towers, and sewer and water lines, and other related items.

These water and sewer projects do a number of things. They help to improve existing service, they provide additional service to Mississippians in rural areas of the state, and they help to stabilize jobs.

The monthly totals were: a $27,000 loan and a $323,300 grant for January; a $600,000 loan for February; $5,720,200 in loans and $6,535,000 in grants for March; and $1,823,700 in loans and $341,000 in grants for April.

A few examples of the awards include: $1,017,000 to the Glen Allan Utility District in Washington County for a sewer system; $521,400 to the Centreville Water Association in Holmes County for a water system; $905,000 to Clarkdale Water Association in Lauderdale County for a water system including service for 56 additional customers; and $1,003,500 to Kissuth Water Association in Alcorn County for a water system.

But it's all much more important than just grants or loans. What we are talking about here is an effort to improve the lifestyles of Mississippians all over the state.

You've got to have water and you've got to have a sewer system, and this is something that I will continue to work on for Mississippi.

The Hwy. 603 domino effect

Shown are two of four vehicles involved in a series of rear-end collisions Monday morning on Hwy. 603. Highway Patrol Trooper Roy Fullerton said the accident occurred 7:45 a.m. Monday when a vehicle heading north hit a stopped car, causing a chain reaction. A 1986 Buick driven by Christopher Cheek, 29, of Waveland, stopped behind a vehicle waiting to turn left off the highway and onto Tigris Street. Behind Cheek was Tyron Ladner, 17 of Perkinston, driving a 1985 Ford truck; next was Edna T. Rutledge, 30 of Bay St. Louis, driving a 1983 Oldsmobile. According to Fullerton, Stephen A. Chatman, 16 of Bay St. Louis, driving a 1985 Ford, could not stop and hit the rear of Rutledge's car, starting the chain reaction. Rutledge was taken by Mobile Medic to Hancock Medical Center where she was treated and released. No citation was issued. (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

Operation Identification Waveland PD program to facilitate property recovery

BY TRACI BONNEY
Two thefts occur on the same night in Waveland. The police apprehend the suspects and are able to return one victim's property, but not the other's. Why? One of the victims took advantage of a new service being offered by the Waveland Police Department; the other didn't. This new service, offered under the Operation Identification program, enables property owners to mark their property and catalog it, so that if it is ever stolen, the police can more easily return it once it is recovered. Chief James Varnell said the department has several engravers that residents can borrow to mark their belongings with their name and Social Security or driver's license number. Those who are unable to go to the police station because of age or disability may call the department at 467-3669 and arrange for an officer to come to their homes and engrave their property. "This will let us much more easily identify property and return it," Varnell said. "A lot of stuff we recover never gets back to its rightful owner because there are no identifying marks. Also, we have lists available so people can write down the model or serial numbers and descriptions of their belongings. A lot of times, we have people tell us, 'I bought that three years ago, and I don't have the paperwork any more. I don't know the serial number.' That makes our job harder, and makes it less likely that the person will get his stuff back."

owners, regardless of whether or not the owner is the original one or a subsequent one. He explained that since the property originally belonged to the owner, who granted the city the right of way to build the street, the property reverts to the owner.

Concerning possible future petitions, Favre said the city would take each one on a case-by-case basis.

"Anyone has the ability to petition, and the Council would take each situation on its own. We would assess the need for the abandonment, the present and future potential for development, and make a decision."

prior to city meetings for review.

The board voted to take under advisement two bids for the rehabilitation of the Tide Street well.

Senator Vic Franckiewicz appeared before the board and reported on various legislation competed this year which will affect municipalities.

He spoke on the recently passed sales tax bill, saying though the amount of return to the cities was less, the increase in total tax collections would offset any loss to municipalities.

He briefly explained increased funds to school districts by the tax increase will eventually reduce school taxes paid by property owners. He added the school district's ability to increase millage by seven percent per year was now reduced to two percent per year, and this two percent would be applicable to the lower tax base.

He said the Bingo Bill now limits bingo to two sessions per day and eight sessions per week, eliminating the 24-hour bingo halls.

He spoke of H.B. 102, which gives municipalities the authority to prosecute violators in meter tampering.

In other business the board approved:

—authorization to send seven firemen May 22 to Baton Rouge for a firefighters examination;

—$100 for advertisement of the city to the St. Clare Old-Fashioned Fair and Seafood Festival; —and authorization for city utilities superintendent Mike Barnes to attend the Superfund Conference in place of the mayor.

Spout About Books

Summer reading program kicks off at three library branches

"Spout About Books" will be the theme of this year's summer reading program, sponsored by the Hancock County Library System at all three branches—City-County, Kiln and Waveland. This year's program will be divided into two portions—reading incentive and summer activities.

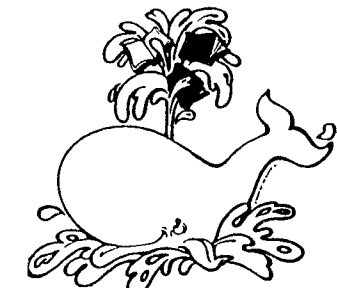

The reading incentive portion is for any child or young adult, pre-school age through eighth grade. Children who have not yet learned to read may participate by having a parent read to them.

Pre-registration begins Wednesday, May 27, and runs through Saturday, June 6. To register, visit the Hancock County Library Branch nearest you, and then visit a branch library at least six times, and check out at least six books between May 27 and July 8. To validate each visit, each child will receive a sticker to put on his reading record.

At the end of the reading incentive portion, a goodie bag and certificate will be awarded each participant who completes the requirements. Awards will be presented the week of July 13. Merit stars will be awarded for every five books read beyond the basic reading goal of six books.

Children should also register for "free" drawings to be held periodically throughout the program.

The summer activities portion of the program is for reading incentive participants and other children who are not participants.

Opening day will kick off at

CES seventh graders win state, national honors

TIP, the Duke University Talent Identification Program, has announced the names of local seventh graders who were among those who earned the highest scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or the American College Testing Assessment (ACT). Those tests are administered as part of an annual Talent Search with TIP has operated since 1980.

Six Coast Episcopal seventh graders were selected for recognition at the state level and will be honored at a ceremony at the University of Southern Mississippi on June 6 in Hattiesburg. They are Betsy Goldin, Brooke Hartwell, Laila Hlass, Courtney Hopper, Sam Kennerly and Amelia Taylor. Students invited to the state ceremony scored as well or better than the average college-bound high school senior on either the SAT or the ACT.

Hartwell, Hlass and Kennerly have been invited to the Grand Recognition Ceremony on June 8 at Duke University Chapel in Durham, N.C. These students earned scores higher than 50 percent of college-bound high school seniors. Of the 61,000 students who participated in TIP's 12th annual Talent Search only 2,243 qualified for this honor.

"Exceptional academic talent is a precious national resource that is often undervalued or ignored in our society," said TIP's executive director Dr. David Goldstein.

"For many outstanding young people, recognition from TIP is an important source of support and encouragement for their efforts."

TIP serves 16 states in the Southeast, Midwest, and Southwest. TIP is a nonprofit, educational organization established in 1980. The program receives support from student fees and donations from individuals, corporations, and foundations.

These were the findings of Mississippi Test Facility personnel after scanning tapes of performance obtained during last Friday's full duration acceptance firing of the S-11 Saturn V-Apollo second phase moon shot booster rocket at Mississippi Test Facility. If the data proves successful the component will be shipped out on Feb. 5 via river barge to Michoud. There it will be off-loaded and put on board a sea going barge for passage to Cape Kennedy. The component is scheduled to become part of the first Saturn V vehicle whose launch date is anticipated to be in the second quarter of this year.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

"It was deja vu all over again," Yogi Berra might say. Everyone had an opinion on it. Watts 1965, Washington D.C. and New York 1968 revisited.

Rodney King had become a household name, thanks to an amateur photographer who happened to have his videocamera at the ready when four Los Angeles policemen began to subdue Rodney with hefty belts from their billy clubs.

After what many termed "national trial by videotape," virtually the whole world expected a guilty verdict to be returned. Many people echoed Rush Limbaugh: "I didn't even watch the proceedings. I figured it was a slam dunk."

Some argued that the prosecuting attorney had not built up his case sufficiently; others, that there are technical cracks in our legal system which have to be remedied.

More properly, the jury most likely did the best it could under the constraints placed upon it by law. The fact is, the charge against the policemen was not a mere beating charge but assault with a deadly weapon with the intent to injure severely. In many states, that amounts to attempt of murder.

Thus, the prosecuting attorney opted for the far more difficult of two charges. Given the job of a policeman, that latter charge is very difficult to prove. The obvious problem which many are having is separating legal fact from emotion.

Granted that blacks and other minorities are plagued by unemployment, illiteracy, abject poverty and drug lords, President Bush was still out of line in showing a knee-jerk reaction in decrying "a gross miscarriage of justice."

So were many black leaders and others who should have been trying to cool the emotional riot fires, but chose instead to be misleaders by further afflicting frayed nerves and feelings. A Tom Bradley and a Jesse Jackson should have known that it was not the moment to lament racism and the faults of our government.

When cooler heads have prevailed, when adversary groups are in an approachable mode of communication, then is the time to attack the defects in the system, the racism in our so-called Christians and other believers, and the sustained, decades-long sins of Capitol Hill.

Racial opportunists

Sheriff Harry Lee of Metairie, La., who is often called a racist, echoed what many whites were saying: "I cannot imagine any of my policemen beating anyone like that. There is no way that can be justified."

Practically every white person who called in to radio and TV talk shows voiced the same sentiments as Lee. On the issue of the beating, there was hardly any difference of opinion according to race. That included a number of police callers.

The sole distress stemmed from what even whites considered a shoo-in decision against the offending policemen.

Though sometimes slow, clumsy and aggravating, our legal system appears to be the best in the world, and in this case has yet to run its course all the way up the federal ladder. This latter fact is continually overlooked by many.

Gregory Williams, rescuer of Reginald Denny, a white truck driver critically beaten by rioting blacks, who in this case turned out to be gang members, is himself black.

As in the looting during the great N.Y. blackout a decade ago, racial opportunism must shock us into radical action.

Women's Aglow to meet Tuesday

The Women's Aglow Fellowship of Hancock County will meet Tuesday, May 26, 7 p.m., at the Waveland Resort Inn on Hwy. 90.

Guest speakers are Nancy Cuccie and Carmen Burnham of New Orleans. They are professional Christian counselors at Greenbrier Hospital. For two years they hosted a live call-in radio program on WBSN. Their expertise concerns sexual abuse and codependency.

Cuccie believes that there exists a delicate balance between soul and spirit, and that unfinished business from the past does interfere with present living, hindering deep peace and communication with Jesus. She has been married for 24 years and has two children.

Burnham has been interviewed on several TV programs regarding such topics as Christian counseling and sexual abuse. A noted speaker, she ministers through the gifts of the Holy Spirit, according to program coordinator Edith Palmer.

Burnham is married and the mother of three daughters.

Women's Aglow is an international organization of renewed Christian women who are committed to Jesus. During the monthly meetings of the interdenominational fellowship, the members worship God and share His word.

The fellowship is asking those who attend to bring canned foods and dry goods — flour, sugar, etc. — for the county Food Pantry.

For more information, call Edith Palmer at 467-7507 or Kela Moore at 466-3492.

WE OWE OUR FREEDOM TO THE LIVES THEY GAVE UP FOR US

All thinking people must abhor
The dreadful tragedy of war,
Which often we could not avoid;
And so our troops were then deployed.
It's so unthinkable, and yet
We mustn't let ourselves forget
The debt of gratitude we owe
To those who fought our every foe,
And gave their lives so gallantly
To help preserve our liberty.
So let's remember them with pride;
We're free today because they died.
For this, let's thank the Lord and pray
That we will live to see the day
When all is safe upon our shore,
And freedom reigns forevermore.

be called to make our exit, we will die free men.
